New Detroit cage coach sees potential

DETROIT (AP)—Don Sicko, the fourth University of Detroit basketball coach in nine years, believes he can revive the sagging program at the Jesuit school on the city's northwest side.

Sicko, an assistant at the University of Michigan, was named to the Detroit job Wednesday, replacing the fired Willie McCarter.

"I feel that part of my responsibility is to be sure the stands are filled," Sicko told a news conference. "Promotions are just a gimmick. First, you must have a strong team."
